We are members of Agri-Mark, a northeast farmer-owned milk marketing cooperative that owns the "Cabot" and "McCadam" brand names. Although some milk we produce each day is used by the Cabot butter plant, the majority is used by other processors and reaches store shelves under several other brand names.

Our milk is also supplied to High Lawn Farm marketing under the All-Jersey Queen of Quality label and to Mapleline Farm. It is also used by Beecher's Handmade Cheese in New York City, where you can walk in off Broadway and watch them making cheese and sample Dutch Hollow Dulcet, a Jack-style cheese made exclusively from our milk. Four Fat Fowl, Stephentown, NY, makes its well-known, triple cream cheese, St. Stephen, exclusively with our milk.

Dutch Hollow Farm is also a member of Hudson Valley Fresh, a local cooperative of 10 family farms in the Hudson Valley that processes its own milk. Milk is sold within an 80-mile radius of the processing plant, located in Poughkeepsie, NY, with a guarantee of 36 hours from farm to consumer.

We are looking forward to the completion of our new freestall barn with hopes of moving cows in early March. The new barn should alleviate the over-crowdedness and allow us to continue the expansion of the herd.
